

LOCATION. LOCATION, MY KID IS FAT

INT/DAY: A KITCHEN

KRISTY: Welcome to Location, Location, My Kid is Fat. My Name is Kristy McBuxom. Here we are in the charming village of Hemel Hempstead in Hertfordshire. I'm here to help Joyce find a home for her son Philip. Joyce when did you notice Philip had grown enough blubber to build his own whale?

JOYCE: When Philip was swimming off the coast of Corsica, last summer, and he was declared independent.

KRISTY: And what would you like for Philip now?

JOYCE: A terrace.

KRISTY: Is there anything we should know about the property?

JOYCE: Yes. Philip has been used to house asylum seekers for several months and is need of some modernisation.

KRISTY: There's something else isn't there?

JOYCE: Yes. For two weeks he was a staging post for the US Air Force on the way to their petrol station in Iraq. We believe some munitions were left over.

LOCATION. LOCATION, MY KID IS FAT

KRISTY: So that's a three bed, East Herts., in need of modernisation and some of those flags with skulls and crossbones. Over to Ted. Ted is an Estate Agent and Nutritionist who performs Reiki on the right sort of women. Ted?

TED: Thanks Kristy. I tend to treat the whole house and not just one room. Philip please relax and breath in...hold it...hold it...hold...

F/X: SOUND OF AN EXPLOSION

BLACKOUT

TED: (V.O) Not another Kid of Mass Destruction.
